

If BPL is necessary to provide Internet services to rural areas, why can't it be restricted to use in those areas. Why is it necessary to render the HF Spectrum virtually useless for hundreds of thousands, if not millions, of legitimate users, both licensed and unlicensed? This does not seem like fair stewardship by the FCC.