

BPL is a step backwards in technology. Resources should be spent on upgrading to a fiber optic system that will not disrupt other services. The FCC's main existence is to protect the public air waves from interference caused by other sources whether experimental or large corporate endeavors such as BPL. BPL is such a terrible idea it is hard to believe that it is even being considered.