

Due to the nature of DSSS and it's widespread use in the current ISM band, it would be very beneficial to commerce and the success of wireless ISP's, as well as the success of the adoption of wireless technologies in general, if the FCC were to make more spectrum available under Part 15 rules. The current ITFS spectrum is an ideal candidate as most schools now are being fed via fiber, or are using the ISM band for their interconnectivity. Opening up this band for public use is a proposal I fully support as an Internet Service Provider.
