

Dear Sirs,

From the information I have heard and read, BPL is going to cause so much radio static, it will render some of the allocated amateur bands useless, let alone other bands used by other agencies.. How is it that the FCC, can justify the use of BPL under these conditions? I, among many others object to even considering such an unsound idea. It is my hope that common sense will prevail, and BPL will be scrapped by the FCC, before it is ever implemented.

Sincerely,

Jerry Alexander
