Dear Commissioner Adelstein,

Emergency response communications have never been more critical, or more difficult.

That's because of a common problem on police, fire and EMS radios: interference. Interference, garbled or dropped communications, inhibits first responders from doing their jobs safely and effectively. Essentially, if first responders can't communicate, they can't help and may themselves be in danger.

There is a solution before the FCC: the Consensus Plan. Over 300 public safety organizations, local governments, and congressional officials support this Plan because it eliminates interference before it occurs and at no additional cost to federal, state or local budgets - or the American taxpayer.

The 300 Consensus Plan supporters that have filed with the FCC, along with John Walsh, host of America's Most Wanted, recognize the importance of communications for America's police, fire and EMS workers. This problem has existed long enough, and our first responders deserve better. I am asking you to help.

Please listen to the voices of public safety. Our neighborhoods, families and fellow public safety professionals cannot afford to wait any longer.

Sincerely,

Dear Commissioner Adelstein,

As a Law Enforcement dispatcher for my local sheriff's office, I personally know how important it is for clear radio reception. It is very aggravating when I send a deputy to a call or they make a traffic stop, and can't get out on the radio when I try to check on them. You never know if it's just the radio or if they are in some type of danger. Law Enforcement as well as Emergency Medical Responders, and Fireman deserve nothing less than to be able to communicate with other officers or their dispatchers. The 12 (twelve) hours that my deputies lives are sitting on my shoulders is very important to me. Our officers across the country lives are underpaid and under respected for what they put their lives on the line for. They choose to have this as a career not because of the money, but because they care about the civilians, as well as other officers. So please take into consideration the importance of them being able to communicate.

I am pleased that the FCC is investigating the nonsense that happended during super half time. My roomates and I were shocked, of course, but I cannot imagine how terrible it would be if I had my little brother, or even in the future when I have children, and we were peacefully watching the football game(I mean come on...it's practically an American pasttime to watch the football if no other games, even if one is not a fan) and such filth is played on broadcast TV.

As an American, you have my support to stop nonsense like this from happening ever again by all means necessary.

Dear FCC Commissioner,

Why do you continue to disregard your obligation to protect our citizenry from the constant barrage of indecency on television?

On February 25, ABC affiliate stations aired NYPD BLUE. In the program, a young boy was exposed to full adult female nudity. It is shameless that this kind of broadcast is going unchallenged by the FCC.

As a member of OneMillionyouth.com, I respectfully implore you to vigorously enforce broadcast indecency laws to insure this type of incident does not occur again.

Please don't let children and people of all ages to be seduced to this kind of filth and "not getting us any futher in life" kind of stuff that you allow to go on air. I am extremely disappointed in what you guys are supporting. Please don't let this indecency go any farther and STOP it all together!!! Thank you for reading this far.

Yours Truly,

Dear Commissioner Adelstein,

The need for first responders to be able to communicate in times of crisis has never been greater.

As an American who works every day to protect our communities, I urge you to support the Consensus Plan before the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) to prevent CMRS interference to public safety communications systems.

The FCC has made a commitment to all first responders to address this critical issue, and as time passes, our risk from this problem continues to grow.

The Consensus Plan is the only proposal before the FCC that addresses this problem head-on, and is the only proposal that has the support of America's leading public safety organizations, including:

- Association of Public Safety Communications Officials
- The International Association of Fire Chiefs
- The International Association of Chiefs of Police
- Major City and County Sheriff's Associations

Together with the private sector members of the Consensus Plan, more than 90 percent of affected licensees in the 800MHz band have agreed that this is the best way to resolve this problem for public safety - TODAY. And the Plan requires no public money.

We cannot afford to wait any longer. I hope I can count on your support.

Emergency response communications have never been more critical, or more difficult.

That's because of a common problem on police, fire and EMS radios: interference. Interference, garbled or dropped communications, inhibits first responders from doing their jobs safely and effectively. Essentially, if first responders can't communicate, they can't help and may themselves be in danger.

There is a solution before the FCC: the Consensus Plan. Over 300 public safety organizations, local governments, and congressional officials support this Plan because it eliminates interference before it occurs and at no additional cost to federal, state or local budgets - or the American taxpayer.

The 300 Consensus Plan supporters that have filed with the FCC, along with John Walsh, host of America's Most Wanted, recognize the importance of communications for America's police, fire and EMS workers. This problem has existed long enough, and our first responders deserve better. I am asking you to help.

Please listen to the voices of public safety. Our neighborhoods, families and fellow public safety professionals cannot afford to wait any longer.
