

I want to express my disgust with the FCC for their war against Howard Stern. He was taken off the air last night and another show was broadcast in its place. This show is the same boring show that every other FM station airs every morning. The difference between Howard and these shows is he was edgier. He wasn't afraid to push the envelope. And quite frankly, the FCC has to understand that there is a large percent of the population who enjoys his kind of humor. Just because some people (ie - extreme conservatives and Republicans) don't agree with his humor doesn't mean that everyone has to do without. Do you know what I did when I heard the lame show that took over his timeslot? I turned it off. That is my right, and that is what everyone else had to do who didn't agree with Howard Stern. People have to understand that just because they don't agree with something, doesn't mean it's wrong for everyone. What ever happened to the Freedom of Speech which this country prides itself on? Is it now Freedom of Speech according to what Bush and the FCC deems appropriate? Well what about those of us who do not agree with Bush or the FCC? It's sad that this country is steadily turning into the society in the book "Fahrenheit 451". I just hope it stops before it's too late.
