

I have been trying for years to get just normal power line interference corrected with PG&E. If BPL turns out to be a problem, it will be literally impossible to get it corrected. Also, I have been running carrier control in my home for years and the noise generated by this is outrageous but brief. BPL Would be continuous. I believe that BPL is a bad idea and am against it.