

The comment by the FCC spokesperson that "Amateur operators generally aim their antennas away from noise sources." indicates a lack of knowledge of amateur radio operation and is not a valid reason to allow BPL. Amateur operators obviously aim their antennas at the station with which they wish to communicate.