

The BPL issue has made me realize that the little guy, always finishes last. The FCC position, that existing regulations address, interference from BPL services, to Amateur Radio operations. Is flawed from the onset

Now the little guy has to take on a Utility Co, and hope that he gets relief from interference. Wake up, smell the coffee, once the investment is made, and the money starts rolling in, there will be no going back.

Please don't allow a hobby that has given me great fun and friendship over the years, be ruined.
