

I would like to voice my vigorous objection to running broadband over power lines. The interference caused to the HF bands would render effective communications in emergency situations very tenuous at best. In addition the hf bands would be much noisier at all times because of BPL.