

It seems like money talks and the rest of us just stand there and see mistakes being made over and over. BPL although technically feasible and implementable, is disruptive to the rf environment to 30 Mhz. This fact has been proven over and over again. I know I am wasting my breath because you folks want to put the bucks in your back pocket, but at least I have made myself heard.