

I would like to see the FCC stop going after "pirate" and micro-broadcast radio and TV stations. Big commercial stations have too much of a monopoly on the broadcast spectrum. It should be easy and inexpensive to start a new radio or TV station, and to get a place on the spectrum relative to the popularity of your station. In particular I am upset over the FCC's persecution of San Francisco Liberation Radio.