

Yes i believe that hdtv is good for the consumers who want to have that type of cable viewing, however i disagree that it is going to be mandatory to either buy the convertor box or buy a high priced tv, what about those individuals who live in poverty and still have not converted to dvd players or still have the old curtis mathis tv because they cannot afford a new television. I believe that offering both services as cable choices is the best option. Whats next are you gonna make everyone shut off there landline phones and switch to cell phones.
