

As an avid radio listener I must protest any use of unshielded power lines for distributing digital signals, specifically broadband internet. It will ruin my hobby and interfere with emergency services. From an engineering perspective it is just plain "bad practice".