

BPL is going to kill the amateur radio service and HF use altogether. It is a mistake to surrender to the highest bidder when radio amateurs have given their loyalty through public service. In addition, it is a dear hobby that has been around for generations and something I was hoping to pass onto my son. Please reconsider implementation, as there are other mediums in which to deliver the internet. If people can afford computers, they can afford any required internet service. If not, there's always the public library.
