

BPL emissions on unshielded power lines is a very poor idea and it will cause great interference to other RF services such as the high frequency and medium frequency areas of the radio spectrum. I'm suprised that the Federal Communications Commission is even allowing it to be considered.