

This sounds like a bad idea. Powerlines already contain so much noise in my area that AM radio is unusable in my house most of the time.

I also have X10 devices that work by themselves or don't work at all at certain times of the day.

So I think there is already enough on the power lines.