

Hi, I am a small wireless internet service provider and i would like to start off by saying that we need thhis 3ghz band open. The benifits of opening this band are so great that any disadvantage is ignorable. WISP's don't have very much to work with now so they have been useing techniques to cause less interferance with other systems and with all that we have learned from these techniques we can surely open this band up for other uses.
