

As I begin please note my address is a Rural Route. I must say that bringing broadband over our power lines would be most beneficial to myself and those that live all around me. I have gone through a lot trying to get a faster connection out here in the middle of nowhere and in vain. Personally I believe the armature radio community should back off and let the masses get something more useful. I have also started a campaign locally to start up a BPL in my community. To sum my feelings up...the FCC should make a path for this grand new technology.
