

I disagree with the FCC allowing BPL.....They have a deaf ear on the problems it will generate....It's like the old saying, money talk's....and you know what walk's..

I'm a Amateur Radio operator and we had someone interfering on a repeater with music, profanity...we recorded him several times at his front door and sent all the recordings to the FCC and they did nothing.....we did all the footwork and it was worth $10,000.00 to them....and they did nothing.....2 years of complaining....He was issued a warning in the past from the FCC for interfering with public service systems,and they knew who he was and still did nothing....

Will they enforce BPL interference? They will do the same as they did with our local jammer....Just tell us what they think we want to hear and really do nothing.

Bottom line is BPL will generate more moneyAmateur Radio is of no interest to the FCC anymore.

It was proven to me by the way Reilly Hollingsworth handled our problem....just hope we go away....
